

There's been a revolution in sustainable windows.

Wood is the most sustainable material for windows. But where's the proof? Is the wood certified? What about thermal performance? Maintenance? Life expectancy?

Backed by service life and Life Cycle Assessment data in BRE's new 'Green Guide', windows bearing our quality mark are independently audited for performance and other standards, and have maintenance, durability and timber certification guarantees.

So now you can specify sustainable wood windows with complete confidence. Quite a revolution.
